

I am shocked and appalled that we are even having to face this issue and to defend a practice that is so blatantly in the individual's best interest. You all should be utterly ashamed of yourself for shoving this down our throats. The United States government and its varying entities are here to protect and support its people, NOT to support large corporations who have interests in seeing the death and destruction of a free, open, and fair internet. Please do what is sensible for the American people and defend our current enforceable net neutrality guidelines. You will be held accountable if you fail to withhold the choice of the people.
